6.2 On the Banks of the Suez: Sinai Front Campaign (Large)

This covers just the Sinai Front of the Yom Kippur War. The Egyptians were determined to retake the Sinai and planned for a methodical approach with a large anti-tank cordon. This would force the Israelis to dislodge them from their bridgehead where it was hoped that an advantageous position would put Egypt in good terms during negotiations following a UN ceasefire they knew would come.

6.3 Syrians at the Border: Golan Front Campaign (Medium)

This covers just the Golan Front of the Yom Kippur War. Unlike the Egyptians, the Syrians had planned to attack aggressively and reach the Jordan River. The Syrians knew time was against them as Israeli reinforcements would arrive and equalize the number of forces, so making an all-out effort to reach their objectives quickly was to be their key to success.

Arab Reinforcements:

Use the Arab Order of Arrival for those units that arrive on the Golan Front and Syrian side of the Arab Player Display.

6.4 Duel for the Golan (Small)

This scenario covers just the opening days of the war along the Golan Front. The focus is on the Syrian offensive to reach the Jordan River and the Israeli response to recapture the Golan Heights. This became a desperate knife fight for both sides.

Playing Area: Golan Map

First Turn: 6 Oct 73

Last Turn: 8 Oct 73

Turn Length: 3

First Player: Arab

Victory Conditions:

Use the game victory conditions (4.0) for Golan-related conditions. If Sudden Death (4.1g) is not achieved, then determine the winner by a modified Normal Victory Determination (4.1f) at the end of the scenario:

Syrian Victory: If the Arab 'end of game VP' is five or greater than the Israeli VP total

Draw: If the Arab 'end of game VP' is four more than the Israeli VP total

Israeli Victory: If the Arab 'end of game VP' is less than four greater than the Israeli VP total.

6.5 Iraqi Intervention (Medium)

The Israelis conducted a counteroffensive into Syria after stopping the threat in the Golan Heights. With forces moving towards Damascus, a new enemy appeared that would divert the Israeli's attention: the Iraqis had arrived. Followed later by a Jordanian contingent, the Arabs were joining forces again to defeat their common enemy.

6.6 Aryeh Dov (Small)

Israeli Command had sought to counterattack the Egyptian crossing with heavy airstrikes and a blitzkrieg type armor attack to cause the type of panic caused in the Six Day War in 1967. If the victory conditions seem tough, these were the historical expected objectives by Gonen, Southern Command Commander, to Adan and Sharon. The objectives continued to change through the day to add to the confusion. The Egyptians stood their ground and the result was an embarrassing defeat for the Israelis and a deeper respect for the enemy.

6.7 Operation Stouthearted Men (Medium)

After discovering the seam between the Egyptian Second and Third Armies, the desired counterattack to cross the Suez Canal was launched a day after the failed Egyptian Armored Offensive. The fighting would revolve around the Chinese Farm, so-named after misidentifying Japanese characters on irrigation equipment after the Israelis had occupied the Sinai in 1967. The battle was intense, with stubborn resistance by the Egyptians while the Israelis tried pushing them away to establish and hold a bridgehead west of the Suez Canal.

6.8 Africa (Large)

Following the successful crossing of the Suez, the Israelis sought to breakout from their tenuous bridgehead and take the war into the African side of Egypt. The aim was to surround and cut off the Third Army. The Egyptians had to call on their General HQ reserves to stop the Israelis. Through confusion and denial, the response was muddled until it was almost too late. The race was on before the UN ceasefire.
